

MONEY IN INVENTIONS

W. C. CUTLER, INVENTOR, SAYS
NOTHING IN THE WORLD
PAYS SO WELL

Recently the newspapers quoted Thomas Edison as saying, "An inventor hasn't a chance in a hundred to make money out of his inventions. I never made a cent inventing in my life." When asked his opinion of this statement W. C. Cutler, Glendale inventor, who owns 138 of his own inventions and has sold many others, said: "There is nothing in the world that pays so well as inventions. There isn't a line of human effort under the sun that pays so well as devising new machines or processes to lighten labor, improve living conditions or add to the pleasure of mankind."

"All the diamonds, silver and gold produced from all the mines of the world annually do not equal in value the income of owners of U. S. patents. A machine that will do its work with the help of five men today on which the help of twenty men was required yesterday, will at once receive attention. In fact invention is the short cut to results. Save material, money and labor, and you will find success. Mr. Edison evidently takes the view that patents don't properly protect inventions. I can't agree with him. There are more than 1700 patents issued on harvesters and if Mr. Edison's statement was a fact and one man was allowed to have exclusive use of the right protected by patents for 17 years, for the manufacture of harvesters, what would have been the incentive for the other 1699 men who have expended their efforts on improvements in harvesters? And this number does not include hundreds of others who have worked on machinery of this class and failed. Inventors who have benefited mankind have accomplished one of two things: they have either effected great economies for their fellow men or produced new methods of entertainment."

"Every inventor will tell you that his greatest invention is yet to come. No man knows what is yet to be invented. The old saying, 'Let well enough alone,' is not sound. Nothing is 'well enough' unless it is constantly becoming better, therefore every man must have a right to patent protection on improvements as he thinks them out. Take away this protection and you stop the greater part of all improvements in almost all lines of invention. We would be binding grain by hand were it not for the protection the patent office affords on improvements. I do not contend that the U. S. patent laws are the best for the inventors, but I do contend that Mr. Edison's ideas would, if put in operation, spell monopoly, and that 90 per cent of all inventors would retire from the field."

"Let them continue, and let us all

THE DREYER BOYS

BOTH NOW AT COCO SOLO, PANAMA, AT SUBMARINE BASE ON THE ATLANTIC

Mrs. H. H. Dreyer, of Montebello, a former resident of this city, spent several hours in Glendale Monday. She brought several interesting letters from her two sons, Henry and William Dreyer, both of whom are in the navy. For some time Henry has been at the Submarine Base at Coco Solo on the Atlantic side of Panama. William has been at the Navy Training Station at Mare Island, but the first of the present month was transferred to Coco Solo and almost immediately found his brother, to the immense surprise of the latter, who had no hint of his coming. William writes:

"I did not think so much of Panama City, it is so dirty and the streets are so narrow, with old-fashioned buildings." He also writes:

"I don't eat much now at meal times, there are too many cocoanut trees growing around. Coco Solo means 'only cocoanuts.' That is all there is for a mile up and down the water front, one big cocoanut grove."

Henry writes: "Well, we are together at last, and some surprise too. Bill arrived with the new draft from Mare Island last night and I sure was surprised to see him. We are tickled to be together again. He looks fine, too, and thinks he will like it here."

In another letter he says: "They have stopped selling candy in the canteen here as they have in all the canteens of the navy on account of sending sugar to France to the soldiers."

In one of the letters Henry tells of meeting Beryl Platt and Roland Walters, two Glendale boys who are in the navy.

HONOR CLEM MOORE

RETIRING COMMANDER OF THE
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR GIVEN
BANQUET

Monday evening, February 25, was one long to be remembered by the members of the Glendale Commandery of Knights Templar, when the officers gave a banquet and entertainment in honor of their commander, Clem Moore, whose work has been above criticism and worthy of unlimited praise, as Mr. Moore finishes his term of office with the Commandery free from debt of any kind.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Ogg had entire charge of the dinner and great credit is due to their management. They were assisted by the wives of the officers, who can justly be proud of their work.

The decorations were rich in their simplicity and called attention to the artistic ability of Mrs. Rattray and Mrs. Betz, who were in charge.

After dinner Major A. J. Copp, Jr., Inspector of the 5th department of the Commanderies of Knights Templar of California, told of his inspection of the Knights of Pasadena, Alhambra and Glendale, given at Pasadena Wednesday, February 13, where Major Copp said Mr. Moore again proved his ability as commander of Glendale Knights in presenting a most efficient body of men, as so many presented themselves for inspection at Pasadena, thereby proving their unity and strength in their steadily growing commandery. Major Copp told of his official visits to the different commanderies in his district with Samuel R. Clark of San Francisco, Grand Commander of the State of California, and was high in his praise of the work of the

$5000 MORE FOR BRIDGE

PLANS FOR VERDUGO WASH
BRIDGE BEING COMPLETED
RAPIDLY

The following letter from Supervisor Jonathan S. Dodge conveys information which should be of pleasant interest to every citizen of Glendale. The letter reads:

February 25, 1918.
T. W. Watson,
City Manager,
Glendale, Cal.
My Dear Watson:

You can report to your Board that an additional appropriation of $5000 has been secured to insure the building of the bridge across the Verdugo Wash. This makes a total appropriation of $20,000 and certainly should insure a splendid structure. The Road department has been instructed to complete these plans as rapidly as possible.

I do not see that anything can prevent early work on this improvement except possibly the securing of rights of way. I feel the City of Glendale should take the laboring oar in getting these rights of way and the question of paying for the same would certainly be a matter to be adjusted between the City of Glendale and the Flood Control District.

Very sincerely yours,
JONATHAN S. DODGE,
Supervisor of Fifth District.

CLASS SUPPER

A dinner which it is planned to make an annual affair was enjoyed last Thursday evening by the Young People's class of the Christian Church, covers being laid for thirty. The program had a military flavor, though it all had reference to the work of the class and Sunday School.

Miss Birdie Shropshire was toast-mistress and introduced the speakers, who all made excellent after dinner talks. Miss Laura Wilfert Brown responded to the toast, "The Old Guard." Miss Bertie Duncan to "The New Recruit," Miss Elizabeth Jackson to "Our Heroes," a tribute to class members who are now in camp. Willard Learned to "The Company and the Regiment," Mr. Learned being superintendent of the Sunday School, which stood in his talk for the regiment, the class for the company; the last speaker, Pastor Clifford A. Cole, who gave "Orders from the Commander." As he is the class teacher, the significance of his theme can be appreciated.

The dinner, which was very delicious, was prepared and served by four class mothers, viz.: Mesdames A. B. Heacock, O. L. Kilborn, J. P. Shropshire and E. H. Learned.

There were musical and instrumental numbers contributed by Homer Miller and Miss Grace Shropshire, and a very pleasant social evening was spent.

AMERICANS FLEE MOSCOW

ALL BELIEVE THAT GERMANY IS DRIVING FOR POSSESSION OF THAT RUSSIAN CITY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
WASHINGTON, February 26.—The impression is so prevalent in Moscow that Germany is driving for the possession of that city that the American Consul General there is attempting to arrange for the departure of the entire American colony to Samai, 500 miles east. All the Americans are safe thus far.

TO DEFEND PETROGRAD

IN SPITE OF RUSSIA'S ACCEPTANCE OF GERMANY'S PEACE TERMS MOBILIZATION CONTINUES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
PETROGRAD, February 26.—Despite the acceptance of German-imposed peace, mobilization and hurried preparations for the defense of Petrograd continue. Small German detachments are reported moving toward Petrograd from Pskoff, 162 miles away.

A workman's battalion is being organized and troops are already going toward Pskoff. After Pskoff was captured the Germans advanced several stations. The Russians began a counter attack and the city changed hands several times, finally remaining in possession of the Germans.

RECEIVE NAMES OF TUSCANIA DEAD

TWO CALIFORNIANS AMONG THE SIXTY-ONE JUST REPORTED TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
WASHINGTON, February 26.—The war department has received 61 more names of the dead in the Tuscania disaster. These were previously reported as unidentified. Two Californians are in the list, Read C. Davis of Colusa and Chas. P. H. McVay of San Francisco.

B. C. SHIPYARD WORKERS MAY STRIKE

8000 CANADIAN WORKMEN MAY WALK OUT FRIDAY IF DEMAND FOR WAGE INCREASE IS NOT MET

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
VANCOUVER, B. C., February 26.—A strike in the shipyards of British Columbia involving over 8000 men is regarded as inevitable if the 10 per cent increase in wages demanded by the men is not met by Friday. If the men walk out the Dominion government may possibly appoint an arbitration board to take over the settlement of the dispute.

WARNS AGAINST COAL SHORTAGE

SENATOR READ BLAMES FUEL ADMINISTRATION'S "EXPERIMENTATION AND GUESS WORK" FOR CRISIS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
WASHINGTON, February 26.—A disastrous coal shortage threatens unless the fuel administration ceases its "experimentation and guess work," Senator Read warned today. He submitted the following recommendations to avert the shortage:

The ending of government interference with coal prices.
The immediate announcement of prices to prevail after April 1 so that dealers may make contracts.

The giving of information to consumers that they may know how much coal is available and at what price it may be purchased. Reading from the testimony submitted in the recent coal probe, Senator Read quoted figures to prove that coal production in 1917 exceeded that of 1916 by 16 per cent, while at the same time the amount of coal shipped abroad in 1917 was less than during the preceding year.

He blamed the fuel administration for the acute shortage of coal this winter.

WILSON'S BILL REPORTED FAVORABLY

APPROPRIATION OF $50,000,000 FOR HOUSING FACILITIES
FOR CONGESTED WAR CENTERS MAY PASS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
WASHINGTON, February 26.—Secretary of Labor Wilson's bill appropriating $50,000,000 for housing facilities for congested war centers was reported favorably by the House Building and Grounds committee today. The bill was only slightly changed by the committee. Should the bill pass, the fund will be expended under the direction of Otto M. Ilditz, newly appointed director of Housing under Secretary Wilson.

WATER BOND ELECTION

PEOPLE IN TROPICO DISTRICT WILL VOTE ON CITY
OWNERSHIP

The proceedings in connection with the Water Bond Election to be held in the Tropico District are progressing as rapidly as possible.

This election is held for the purpose of giving the people of this section an opportunity to vote on the subject of the city ownership and operation of the water system.

The Ordinance of Intention was made effective February 21st, having been read, adopted and published according to the law. The Board of Trustees will call the election on March 19, 1918.

In accordance with the desire of the people of this section, the work is being carried along as rapidly as possible, no time being lost except that which is actually required by law. Any one caring to protest can do so February 28th at 8 p. m. at the City Hall.

These bonds, if voted, will not be an expense to the people in this district. The Public Service Department has always taken care of all interest and the retiring of the bonds, this being entirely met from the income.

The water rates now charged by the Public Service Department will be immediately effective upon the acquisition of the water system by the City.

Proceedings for the purchase of the existing electric system will follow immediately upon the completion of water bond election.

NUMBER BY BLOCKS

C. O. PULLIAM FAVORS BRAND
AND BROADWAY AS STARTING POINT

Claude O. Pulliam, who has been long established in business in Glendale and who has its interests very much at heart, has quite definite ideas on the subject of street numbering systems. Relative to the suggestion that houses be numbered consecutively regardless of blocks, he said, when interviewed:

"I think it would be extremely confusing as to distances. All of the large cities are numbered by blocks. That gives a person a correct idea of the distance they will have to go from a division point. If numbered consecutively, 900 might be five blocks away from the place you expected to find it."

"I am very much in favor of numbering the streets north and south from Broadway and east and west from Brand, as that is now apparently nearer the center of population than any other point, taking into consideration the importance of the streets, the population and the size of the city. Pasadena adopted a very similar center in Fair Oaks and Colorado and it has worked out well there."

"I think that two numbers to each fifty feet are sufficient for a block. Four numbers to each fifty feet are desirable only in an apartment district. Otherwise it is undesirable and confusing."

GLENDALE BOY INDUCTED

A Glendale boy is today entering the Coast Artillery at San Pedro by special induction through the offices of the local Board. He was examined by local physicians last week and decided he would rather choose his service than wait to be drafted. A great many boys from this locality are in the Coast Artillery, and he felt he would be more at home there than elsewhere, hence his choice. His name is Frank Simon Camargo, of 320 Belmont street. He was born in Glendale of Mexican parents and has had some schooling in our grammar schools, though he was not graduated from them. He has had his muscles well developed by manual labor, is a husky fellow, and gives promise of making an excellent soldier.

Evolution has worked many changes in our system of raising an army and the last modification by which all the men registered were called for physical examinations seems to be working out well. It paves the way for immediate induction and gives registrants a chance to select the branch of service they prefer so long as there are vacancies to be filled in existing regiments and corps. Every Board is sending men forward in this quiet way and they are going as fast as the camps can receive and take care of them. Registrants are waking up to the situation and doing some thinking and choosing on their own account without waiting for a recruiting officer to persuade them.

OBJECTS TO CHANGE

F. McG. KELLEY DEFENDS PRESENT SYSTEM OF NUMBERING
GLENDALE STREETS

Now that Tropico and Glendale have united, there undoubtedly exists a necessity for renumbering houses in a portion of the present Greater Glendale.

That the change will cause a certain degree of hardship for some time after the change must be recognized by any one who has had any experience in that line, especially in the matter of mail and deliveries.

At present in Glendale, beginning at First and Adams the streets are numbered south and lettered west as far as Maryland. The later additions unfortunately did not adhere to the original plan.

The numbers begin with 100 and extend 100 to each block in all four directions. What plan could be simpler than that? The fact that the starting point is not central makes no difference; it is a point which can be permanent, and that is the vital thing in any numbering system. That some blocks are so long as to necessitate 200 to a block, or that there are several named streets where they might have been numbered, is regrettable perhaps, but in a town built up piecemeal, irregularities are bound to occur and no system will overcome the exceptions to the rule.

Any newcomer to our town should not expect to find all numbering begin at the point at which he steps off. If he does expect that, I think that we would soon find him to be an undesirable citizen.

In informing any newcomer as to the "lay" of our town and its system of numbering, a map is necessary, as is the case with any city, and it is very easy to explain that numbers on Broadway and parallel streets begin at Brand with 1200 and run west.

The numbers on the north and south streets should need no explanation to any intelligent person at all familiar with numbering systems elsewhere.

A radical change in our system would surely bring delight to the printer and to rubber stamp makers, but to the merchant who has on hand much printed stationery or who has sent out much advertising matter, it would bring no joy, nor would it to our hard-worked postal clerks and carriers, nor to deliverymen, nor owners of directories.

I witnessed two changes in the system in Los Angeles, and the present is the best of the three systems tried, and ours is like unto it.

F. McG. KELLEY,

DEATH OF LEIGH THORNTON

Leigh Thornton, brother of Col. Tom C. Thornton, passed away Sunday at his home, 2830 W. Temple street, Los Angeles, after a short illness of a complication of diseases.

The deceased had been a resident of Los Angeles for fifteen years, coming here just after the Galveston flood, in which it was thought for a time that he and his entire family were lost. He was 57 years of age.

Funeral services in charge of the Pulliam Undertaking Company will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 in the funeral chapel of the Forest Lawn Memorial Park and the remains will be laid to rest in the family lot there.

WATER PRESSURE

LACK OF IT MENACE TO SAFETY OF GLENDALE IN OPINION OF MR. SPARR

In connection with the water problems suggested by the breaking of the long drouth, Ernest Sparr commented on Glendale's good fortune in possessing an abundant supply of water, not alone from the mountains but from its deep wells, which would remove it from anxiety about irrigation water. "What it needs now," said he, "is storage reservoirs. We ought to have at least one good reservoir at a sufficient elevation to give the pressure needed for the protection of the city. If you open a hydrant at one end of the town now, you can not get water at the other end. It looks as though it would not be at all difficult under existing conditions to make such reservoirs and with our fine pumping system it would be easy to fill them. It might be expensive, but on the other hand it might be more expensive to do without them. The town is growing faster than people realize and we are going to need these things greatly one of these days. There are many points in the city where they haven't pressure enough to get the water they need. If we should some day have two fires in different parts of the town at the same time, the results might be serious."

CHANCE FOR EVERYBODY TO WORK

Many retired citizens of Glendale are very patriotically cultivating vacant lots. These are men who do not need to employ themselves in this way on account of financial conditions, but there is a feeling in the minds of these men that it is possible for them to do their bit in this way. Before the beginning of the war it was considered that the man of financial means who would butt in and take work away from the laboring man was not a good citizen, but times have changed since Uncle Sam has called out so many young men. There is a chance for everybody to work now.

VALUE OF HONEST CRITICISM

No more comprehensive or clearer defense of the value of criticism in time of war, or more effective attack upon those who condemn expression of opinion as unpatriotic and inclined to give comfort to the enemy, has been made than by Charles Evans Hughes, in an address to the Men's Bible class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, and later by Senator Hiram Johnson during his discussion upon the administration's policy as relating to the control of the railroads on February 19.

Both great leaders emphasize the patriotic duty of criticism and denounce that part of the American public and press which cries "Traitor" should some individual refuse to suppress his proper complaint of inefficiency on the part of the men in charge. A clear distinction, however, is maintained between constructive and destructive criticism.

Charles Evans Hughes said in part:

"I have never sympathized at all with the idea that even in time of war you could make democracy work without proper freedom of the organs of democratic expression. I believe in freedom of criticism, but every one who criticizes should apply to his criticism the acid test of whether it helps to the vigorous prosecution of the war or retards it. If it helps, then the more of that criticism we have the better. If it embarrasses, then we want none of it, and the American people won't stand it."

Criticism there should be and must be. That is the only way in which democracy can function in time of war as well as in time of peace; but it must be honest criticism and it must be intelligent criticism.

Senator Hiram Johnson expressed himself on the floor of the senate as follows:

"Ours is the only democracy which pursued the policy—I hope it is now almost at an end—of fearing its people and considering them so lightly that it dared not take them into its confidence."

He praised the pending congressional investigations into the conduct of the war as resulting in incalculable benefit.

"They have remedied some concrete deficiencies, but they have performed the fundamental service of permitting a modicum of free expression," he said.

"The idea seems prevalent and to find sanction with various individuals and in a large part of the press, that absolute silence and submission without complaint to any deficiency or injustice are the only measure of loyalty. If any individual with the highest motive sought to lay bare a wrong, forthwith he was charged with lending aid and comfort to the enemy. I will not subscribe to any doctrine that says either in peace or in war, legitimate, honest and conscientious criticism or suggestion may not be indulged in."—Whittier News.

WILL YOU CO-OPERATE OR OBSTRUCT?

That was the pointed question President Wilson asked of the head of the Ship Carpenter's Union when notified they would strike.

If you are not willing to have your differences mediated you are undoubtedly giving aid and comfort to the enemy, said the President.

"Ships are absolutely necessary for the winning of this war, and you can strike no deadlier blow at the safety of this nation."

The time had come for a show of hands whether loyalty to the union was placed higher than loyalty to the life of the nation.

Then the President laid down a great principle of safety for labor organizations, that virtually sounded the deathblow of strikes.

"No body of men has the moral right in the present circumstances of the nation to strike until every method of adjustment has been tried to the limit."

The strike is armed industrialism. It is the highest manifestation of autocratic power. It is as much a resort to force as sabotage.

Public sentiment upholds the intelligent labor unions who are acting on lines of loyalty and co-operation in their own rights.

But the time is past for dictation, for threats, for the use of an organization to hold up necessary industries and limit output.—The Manufacturer.

BUSINESS VERSUS POLITICS

Wherever an industry or business succeeds, some one must pick the manager who makes it a success.

Usually in the free operation of natural and economic laws the right man finds himself for the job.

Whether industries, be they railroads or shipyards, are under socialism or private capital, success is in the manager.

This man is always picked because of his experience fitting him to handle the job, while in politics he is picked for other reasons.

In politics his political opinions must suit the picker, or the one who picks the man must be his friend and admirer.

Politics often picks second-rate men to handle the most important work of the nation, as experience proves.

Business, a corporation, or selfish capitalists, would pick a practical man for the work he was to manage.

Politics picks a man with his head full of economic theories, while business would demand a man who knew his job.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

RECEPTION FOR REV. AND MRS. MARSH, ACTING PASTOR OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

A very happy and successful affair was the reception tendered Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Marsh, acting pastor, on Friday evening at the First Congregational Church.

The rooms were tastefully arranged and decorated with huge jars of calla lilies, ferns and carnations. The table, from which delicious punch was served, was bright with marigold intertwined with asparagus plumosa.

A most excellent program was enjoyed, as follows:

Mrs. Whiting—Reading.
Mr. Abell—Vocal Solo, Accompanist, Mrs. Abell.
Mr. Lowinsky—Violin Solo, Accompanist, Mrs. Lowinsky.

commanderies in the southern part of the state and especially complimented the Glendale Commandery as being the one in the 5th department that would stand out in his memory as the most efficient in their work of any that he had inspected. This, of course, made all of the members of Glendale Commandery much elated, coming as it did from the Grand Commandery of the state.

Dr. Hogue, who is known always to be efficient in presenting bouquets to the ladies, proved his ability Monday evening by offering a beautiful one of white carnations to Mrs. Clem Moore. He expressed the thoughts of all the members and wives when he said that Mr. Moore's work in the Commandery was due to the unflinching generosity of his loving wife, who always has been ready for him to carry on any work necessary for the benefit and improvement of Glendale Commandery.

Mattison B. Jones then gave a brief history of the Glendale Commandery and spoke of the difficulty at first of obtaining a charter for Glendale, due to its close proximity to Los Angeles, but that it has steadily grown, owing to its unity and strength, until it now ranks as one of the first in efficiency.

Mrs. Roy Masters then gave a most delightful piano solo and Mrs. T. D. Ogg pleased all with her sweet and mellow voice.

Then the hall became quiet and Mr. Peckham arose and took his chair in the East, telling all to turn their eyes to the West. There stood Sir Knight Ogg bound in shackles and chains, who was brought before "Judge" Peckham for "trial."

The rest of the evening was spent in a mock trial which from beginning to end was a comedy of errors.

This concluded the evening's entertainment and all expressed their appreciation for such a happy evening and voted thanks to the ladies for their work and hope many such pleasant times will be held in the future.

MYSTERIES REVEALED

DRESS REHEARSAL AT UNION HIGH TONIGHT WILL BETRAY GOOD THINGS IN STORE

This evening there will be held the first dress rehearsal for the annual Variety Show at the Glendale Union High School to be given Thursday afternoon and evening and Friday evening at the High School auditorium. Rehearsals in groups have been taking place for several weeks past, but tonight for the first time the assembled performers will see themselves as others will see them. And, despite their high anticipations, that they themselves will be surprised is the prediction of the very few already initiated into the mysteries in store.

The Variety Show is rightly so called as will be appreciatively conceded when the audiences find themselves enjoying everything in the wide range from the solemn sermon by the "Rev. Fiddle, D.D." to the flippant farce in which the bride and best man, bridesmaid and groom become most engagingly entangled. Comedy undisguised will reign at T. Bone Charlie's Chop House, and perhaps just a hint of pathos will creep into the picture where the soldier boys are revealed, encamped in true military style and singing, gayly and sometimes a little sadly, even as they are doing in face of danger and death at the far-off front.

The girls' glee club also will add beauty and more music to the evening's showing of talent, and some very funny things will be said and done by a special prize Person of Note whose identity positively must not be revealed. It is a state secret and must remain such—unless you guess it. In all probability he may even wear a veil, he is that sensitive about it. Genius is sometimes thus retiring, and always temperamental, you know. But he is funny, even though you may never guess his secret. The whole show is a good one as most of the citizens of Glendale will be able to testify after the three performances have given everyone a chance to see it.

ALL FOR LA BELLE FRANCE

August 25, 1572, Captain Jean Le Noir (direct ancestor of the author of the following verses) left Paris with his ship full of refugees. They landed at Charleston, South Carolina. Now from all over this continent their descendants rally to succor their Mother-Land.

THE FRENCH CRUSADE
By Walt. Le Noir Church of Glendale

We heed your fierce call, O Mother!

And on the West Winds we go.

No U-boat can stop our legions.

From routing your savage foe.

Some rally from "South Cal'ny"—

And some from old Plymouth Rock;

But all are the fighting scions

Of the same old fighting stock.

From highlands of Colorado—

From both Mississippi banks—

From valleys of California.

They rush to fill up our ranks.

Some flash the bright K. C. falchion—

Some couch the old K. T. lance—

All shouting the one proud slogan:

"Rescue beloved La Belle France!"

L'Envoi.

Backed by the Lion Unconquered—

No foe can stop our advance.

Under the Star-Spangled Banner

Wreathed with the Lilies of France!

Dr. Marsello Boldimi, one of Italy's greatest scientists, has been working with the Italian army gathering statistics upon which to base his opinions on the fighting ability of various classes of his countrymen. The war has given science a chance to prove what it has for years suspected—that a man's strength, height and initiative depend far more than anyone suspected upon the month in which he was born.

Doctor Boldimi has discovered that those men born between January 1 and March 31 are stronger, taller and superior in intelligence to those soldiers whose birthdays fall in other months.

By living with the army, gaining its measurements and observing the men individually he says he has demonstrated this to his complete satisfaction.

The review of the troops which was to have taken place last Friday at Camp Kearny has been postponed for two weeks. If the weather is favorable then, many people from this locality will attend.

San Gabriel has such an epidemic of measles that the school authorities are considering the recommendation of the City's Health Officer to close the schools for two weeks.
Fifty-five cases have been reported.
It is in a light form.

West Tenth street, drove to Newhall Sunday and had a picnic dinner in the grove there, enjoying a nice, juicy steak broiled over the coals of an out-door fire.

The Medical Advisory Board claims to have word from Adjutant General Boree authorizing the examiners for the local boards to pass men in the partly qualified class. The orders which the Board received from General Crowder forbid the passing of anybody in that class. So says Chairman Lanterman.

The postponement of the big review at Camp Kearny made it possible for Supply Sergeant Robert C.
Plume to get leave and he spent Saturday and Sunday in Glendale, coming up from San Diego Friday afternoon. He is very busy at the offiistrator, and has been so impressed visit. He reports that Norwalk did not get as much rain as Glendale.

The forty acres on which he is at etc.

The illustrated lecture on Jerusalem, given by Dr. J. H. Hunter of the Bible Institute Sunday at the Presbyterian Church, proved most interesting. It had to do with old Palestine and modern Jerusalem and some of the pictures of the historic places were late views taken since the recent change of administration, but he did not go into the present political status of Jerusalem.

Private Edwin Powers of 315 W.
Colorado street has been assigned to 363d Infantry Supply Company,
Camp Lewis. He is well satisfied and likes the life in spite of the fact that there is a great deal of cold, rainy weather. In a recent letter to his mother he stated he was on the rifle range last week, and that he can shoot pretty well at 200 yards, but at 300 yards he says: "I couldn't hit a barn door." He is getting there all the same. He hopes he will be transferred to Camp Kearny.

is an amateur actor and playwright of considerable local reputation. For years he has been a standby whose popularity never flagged at variety entertainments in this city, and he has good naturedly responded to all appeals when possible, for he is a good citizen, always ready to boost the affairs of his own town. This evening (Tuesday) he has been engaged for a benefit entertainment which is being given in the auditorium of Polytechnic High, Los Angeles, where he will give his original reading, "The District Attorney."

In his talk at the graduation exercises in the Intermediate School, Mark Keppel referred to the proposition which is always being revived of "reducing the school curriculum and making it more practical." It usually reaches a point, according to Mr. Keppel, where a mass meeting is called to discuss the matter, and the mass meeting usually breaks up after passing a resolution to add this or that to the course of study. It does not appear whether such an agitation has been going on in South Pasadena or not, but a new course has been added to the curriculum of the High School, viz., a class in journalism. It has been started for the purpose of training students for work on the high school paper.

RED CROSS NOTES

The weather does not materially affect the output of Glendale's Red Cross Chapter. Rain or shine, the workers are there early and late.
Monday was Mrs. Lawshe's day as instructor in the surgical dressings department, the workers under her being Mesdames Eva Bolen, Edna Sawyer, C. S. Hutton, W. J. Masak, M.
G. Musser, R. P. Jodon, Carson Taylor, C. N. Erling, R. M. Jackson, M.
Goewey, Claude E. Case, D. B. Pingree and W. J. Stone, Misses Mary E.
Chester and Maude Cunningham.

Stocks are accumulating at a rapid rate in the knitting department under Mrs. Ezra Parker and Miss Ainsworth. The receipts yesterday from the knitters of the chapter were: 27 sweaters, 12 pairs of socks,

UNDER THE CAMOUFLAGE

By Lowell Mellett
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Jan. 12 (By Mail).—"Do you drink?" asked the Irish the lawyer.

"That's my business," responded the angry witness.

"Aa-any other business?" asked lawyer.

It's an old story but, according to Col. Buchan, I met that Irish lawyer today. Col. Buchan avers it was Sir Edward Carson, no less, the most-abused person in present day politics.

We had an enjoyable interview with Carson today. He explained what he really thinks about the League of Nations, taking pains to remove the impression that he is opposed to the idea; and he made it clear that he knows that the western border of Germany is well on this side of the Rhine and has no desire to continue the war until the Kaiser's host has been driven all the way back to the river. He didn't talk about Ireland—whose arch-friend or savior he is, according to whether your sympathies are with the Green or the Orange—but said perhaps he would next time.

No. 2 Whitehall Gardens, where members of the War Cabinet have their offices, is one of the same row of ancient mansions wherein Nell Gwynne had her residence in her days of high favor. In a big barren looking room, only maps and half-filled bookshelves on the walls and little furniture save a dozen chairs and a wide flat desk, we found the ex-Attorney General and ex-First Lord of the Admiralty. He sat leaning forward across the desk, sizing us up as we came in after the manner of a lawyer preparing to pick his jury.

If everybody had learned his Hoosier history from the same book that I did it would be easy to describe Carson. He looks like that book's picture of Black Hawk, the Indian chief. Other pictures of Black Hawk show him magnificently attired in feathers, but in this one he is featherless, just like Carson. There is the same glossy back hair pulled straight back from the low widow's peak to his crown, the same long face and heavy features with deeply grooved lines about the mouth. Everything about his face bespeaks force.

Looking at him it was not hard to understand how he was able to convince the British Government that the Ulster Rebellion was a fight-to-the-finish affair and not a bluff, as the Irish Home Rulers maintained. Nor was it hard to understand that he was accounted one of the most ruthless cross-examiners that ever tortured an unwilling witness.

His manner was all that of the lawyer as he talked. He fiddled with the papers on his desk in a thoughtful way, as though preparing to propound a dreaded question rather than to answer such a one. Matter of fact, I don't think he dreaded the question about the League of Nations. The liberal newspapers have hounded him ever since his startling ironical exclamation: "Talk to me about a League of Nations!" and I think he was glad to hear Joe Grigg's hesitant query on the subject.

At any rate he was ready for it. He talked for twenty minutes in a slow, easy, reasonable way, outlining almost every conceivable difficulty that will confront the organizers of the proposed league, but always getting back to a declaration that something must be evolved from the war that will make future wars impossible and that the League of Nations may be that thing.

I hope to be present when he talks about Ireland.

OUTRANKED IN THE KITCHEN

The son of the well-to-do family had recently joined up as a private, and was spending his Christmas leave at home.

Returning from a walk, his mother espied a figure in the kitchen with the housemaid.

"Clarence," she called to her son, "Mary's got some one in the kitchen. She knows perfectly well that I don't allow followers. I wish you'd go and tell the man to leave the house at once."

Clarence duly departed to the kitchen, but returned in about half a minute.

"Sorry, mother, but I can't turn him out."

"Can't turn him out? Why on earth not?"

"He's my sergeant!"—Saturday Night.

WEDDED TO ART

"When you were in musical comedy you were known as Miss Tonsils. Now you're in grand opera you are Mme. Tonsils. How's that?" quizzed the new interviewer.

"It's this way," was the explanation. "Then I merely had a husband to support: now I'm wedded to my art."—Everybody's.

MONEY IN INVENTIONS

do all we can to induce as many more to enter the field as possible and if something new and useful is produced, the world is enriched to that extent. If nothing tangible is produced, the individual will at least profit by the mental development he will experience."

Mr. Cutler's advice to inventors is to take relaxation. If you become interested in a subject and begin to develop it, don't work too long at a time. If you do, people will soon begin to say, "He's queer." Mr. Cutler gets his relaxation by selling what he produces. He says: "Make your efforts speak for you; let the public find out in its own way whether you are 'real' or 'imitation.' You can read about what has been invented but you must, to be successful and useful, go further and produce something that has not yet been produced. "It is true that comparatively few inventions have been patented. The things that seem wonderful today will seem crude a few years from today. Give the inventors sufficient encouragement and this is bound to happen."

Mr. Cutler has a fund of interesting information in regard to the opportunities for the inventor and what we may look for in this line in the future, which will be given in a later article.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

The Y. M. C. A. has sent out a request for the Junior Red Cross to manufacture checkerboard tables for their camp huts with the checkerboards painted on the top. They say nothing about furnishing the materials and inasmuch as the Junior Red Cross is a part of the government organization and subject to its regulations, and the Y. M. C. A. is an entirely independent affair, Superintendent White is of the opinion it would have no right to use its funds in the manufacture of tables for the Y. M. C. A. It may be that the tables can be manufactured and sold to private individuals who will donate them to the Y. M. C. A. at a price which will afford a margin of profit to the Juniors and so help to supply the funds needed for the purchase of the regular Red Cross supplies.

For some time the schools have been making hospital garments and they have now started to make refugee garments at the Intermediate School, and in the fifth and sixth grades of Columbus avenue, Sixth street, Broadway, Pacific avenue and Central avenue schools. So far these garments have been manufactured from new materials which have been purchased, but when the work is organized, second hand garments collected by the salvage department will be utilized as far as possible in making up clothing for refugee children. Mrs. Ben Nichols, who is deeply interested in this branch of the work and who has been exhibiting samples of such garments made in the Pasadena schools, says that anything in the way of wool garments can be utilized. If too moth-eaten to be used on the outside, it can be used for an inner lining.

More than a carload of salvage, chiefly paper, is on hand and will soon be sold. This will put the Juniors in good shape so far as funds are concerned for the carrying on of their work. With yarn scarce and high as at present, it takes a great amount of money to furnish stock for the knitters.

FOOD REGULATION

Food regulation by the government is going to involve it in a lot of arbitration and adjustment work between shippers and consignors. An example in point is that of a wholesale shipping concern from California which has just had its license revoked and which will be forced to suspend business. The statement of the case issued by the Food Administration follows:

The United States Food Administration announces the first suspension of license by which it has penalized a wholesale shipper of foodstuffs. The Weil-Zuckermann Company, of San Francisco, Cal., carlot shippers of potatoes and onions, will be forced to suspend operations at its Fort Worth, Tex., branch from March 1 until March 31. The penalized company appealed some time ago to the Food Administration to force several concerns which had contracted for shipments to accept them upon delivery. It claimed that these consignors were allowing foodstuffs to rot. As a result of the investigation, the Food Administration found that the shipper was guilty of unfair business practices. Appealing for help from the Food Administration, it was given instead a severe penalty.

Several firms to which the potato and onion concern had shipped refused to accept the consignments, claiming that the goods were in bad order. As an emergency measure, the Food Administration finally secured from the Weil-Zuckermann Company a promise that if the shipments were accepted any losses due to inferiority of goods would be rebated. The consignors agreed to this arrangement. After the shipments had been accepted, the company went back on its agreements, neglecting to make any allowances. Further investigation showed that it had wittingly shipped goods which were not in good condition. It was shown that deterioration had already started when some of the shipments

OUR FLAG

OUR NATIONAL BANNER TRACES ITS ANCESTRY TO MT. SINAI

The following interesting history of our national flag, written by Mrs. Charles M. Turck of Glendale avenue, was read by her before the Music Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club last Friday.

The flag may trace its ancestry back to Mt. Sinai, whence the Lord gave to Moses the Ten Commandments and the book of the law, which testify to God's will and man's duty, and were deposited in the Ark of the Covenant within the Tabernacle whose curtains were blue, scarlet, and white. Before the Ark stood the table of shew-bread with its cloth of blue, scarlet and white linen. These colors of the Jewish Church were taken over by the early Western Church, used for its own and given to all the nations of Western Europe for their flags. It was nearly a year after the representatives of the United States of America had pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor for the support of the Declaration of Independence, that the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, the emblems of England, were discarded and replaced by a union composed of white stars on a blue field representing a new constellation.

There is no real evidence in the official records of that time which proves that the flag was in use before June, 1777.

Many theories have been advanced as to the birth of our Stars and Stripes, one being that the stripes in the design were borrowed from the ensign raised by John Paul Jones on the "Alfred" in 1775 and the stars from the colonial banner of Rhode Island.

Another is that it came from the Netherlands, and in support of this claim the statements of Benjamin Franklin and John Adams, who had gone to Holland to borrow money for our struggling colonies, told the Dutch that America had borrowed much from them, including the ideas represented in their flag.

A number of persons have claimed individual connection with the designing of our beautiful banner, among them Francis Harrison, delegate to Congress from New Jersey and a signer of the Declaration of Independence, who submitted to Congress devices for numerous seals and also for a flag, but the one to whom it is believed the honor really belongs is John Paul Jones, Betsy Ross to the contrary notwithstanding, for the well-known story of the first flag being made by her is now considered a picturesque legend, to which real historians do not subscribe, although there was a Mrs. Ross who was a flag maker, living in Philadelphia at that time.

Paul Jones was at the capitol at the time Congress was considering the question of a national flag, as a member of a Board of Advisers upon matters relating to the country's sea forces and the question of a suitable distinguishing mark to be carried by war vessels was a most important one.

He was so good to look upon that he was lionized by the ladies of the city and patronized by the leading delegates to the Convention, who called upon him to advise the legislators as to the flag design, and he thus had much to do with securing the passage of the act of Congress fixing its characteristics.

When the flag of the United States was chosen it was new in arrangement and design, but of the old colors, red, white, and blue. Red is for courage, zeal, and fervency; white is for purity, cleanness of life, uprightness and integrity, and blue is for loyalty, devotion, friendship, justice, and truth.

The star signifies dominion and sovereignty and is an ancient symbol of India, Persia and Egypt.

Just before the adjournment of Congress Paul Jones was appointed to the command of the "Ranger," one of the Continental frigates, to go abroad, and with his commission in his hands he went to Portsmouth, N. H., from which port the Ranger was fitted out. Portsmouth being one of the principal seaports of this country, its inhabitants were more interested in ships that were to fly the flag and the men who were to man them than were the people of Philadelphia, the capital of the colony were forwarded. The investigation showed, too, that it had accepted a contract for California onions, made out bills for California onions, and then had shipped inferior onions in no way resembling the article for which the contract called.

In its defense, the Weil-Zuckermann Co. admitted all the offenses and claimed that the practices of its Fort Worth branch were due to the "over technical" attitude of its local manager. The company claimed that it was endeavoring to support the Food Administration and when it asked for assistance in bringing recalcitrant patrons into line was actually under the impression that the consignees were not at fault.

The Weil-Zuckermann Co. is one of the biggest food shippers in the West. It does an annual business of about $6,000,000, and operates branches at Los Angeles, Stockton, and Fresno, Cal.; Portland, Oreg.; Wapheo, Toppennich, and Fort Worth, Tex.; Idaho Falls, Twin Falls, Shelly and Filer, Idaho; Denver, Colo.; and Chicago.

nies. Here Paul Jones attracted about him a bevy of young girls who formed a "sewing circle," and with much patriotic enthusiasm and many heart thrills, made out of their gowns and those of their mothers, a beautiful Star-Spangled Banner with seven red and six white bars and thirteen white stars on a blue field, which was first thrown to the breeze in Portsmouth Harbor July 4th, 1777, less than three weeks after Congress had authorized its making.

We recall with great pride and pleasure that the first official salute to the Stars and Stripes was accorded by that nation to which, more than any other, our country owes its existence, France, ally of our darkest hour, and now, in turn, she is aided by us in her day of great need.

America's most gifted poets and orators have vied with one another in setting forth the significance of the red, white and blue of our Star-Spangled Banner.

Henry Ward Beecher once said: "A thoughtful mind when he sees a nation's flag, sees not the flag but the nation itself. And, whatever may be its symbols, its insignia, he reads chiefly in the flag the government, the principles, the truth, the history, that belong to the nation that sets it forth. The American flag is a symbol of liberty and men rejoice in it."

The Hon. Frederick Hicks has said:

"The flag of America does more than proclaim mere power or acclaim a great and glorious history. Its folds wave a benediction to the yesterdays of accomplishment and beckon the tomorrows of progress with hope and confidence," and our own beloved president in a recent speech said of it, in part:

"This flag, which we honor and under which we serve, is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other characteristics than those which we give it from generation to generation. It floats in majestic silence above the hosts, whether in peace or war, and yet, though silent, it speaks to us—speaks to us of the past, of the men and women who went before us, and of the records they wrote upon it. From its birth until now it has witnessed a great history, has floated on high the symbol of great events, of a great plan of life worked out by a great people. We are ready to plead at the bar of history and our flag shall wear a new luster."

Once more we shall make good with our fortunes and our lives if need be, the great faith to which we were born, and a new glory shall shine in the face of our people.

The cruel experiences of the past three years will leave their heart-aches which will go on and on, long after peace shall again reign supreme, and our flag, emblem of our right to live in freedom and happiness, again floats serenely over our beloved land and in all reverence, dear Old Glory, I salute you.

For page upon page we may read all your story of glorious age, We may hear in the rustling of its sweeping folds, The wonderful promise it held and still holds.

The faith that makes strong and the hope that makes true, The strength of the red, and the white and the blue.

May we hear it and know it and feel it, and see

All the pride of the past, and the glory to be;

The red growing redder, the blue growing bluer;

The stars flashing clearer and clearer each day

And the red and the white and the blue all the truer.

We greet thee, Old Glory, the flag of today.

IN POOR STANDING

In Missouri, when asked why the mule raisers of that State stand at the head, we are told: "Because that is the only safe place to stand in the mule industry."

But there is a mule dealer at St. Paul who evidently doesn't share this view in its entirety, for he advertises:

"We know the kind you want, and we will stand behind every mule we sell."

"We can make the conservation of food a pleasant experience all the way through."
